

Thematic ETF specialist expands European business Patrik Engström new Head of Business Development in the DACH region and Scandinavia

London/Munich – 12.08.2020 – Right on track - that's Rize ETF, thematic ETF provider that is consequently expanding its business in Europe. The British asset manager is expanding its team with the native swede Patrik Engström, as the new Associate Director of European Business Development. The sales expert is now responsible for the ETF provider's business development in the Nordic and German-speaking regions of Europe.

Rize ETF co-founder and company spokesman Rahul Bhushan: "We are delighted to welcome Patrik to our team. We are convinced that he will play a key role in making our growing portfolio accessible to existing and future investors with his expertise and extensive network".

Following the listing of the first ETF suite of medical cannabis and cybersecurity ETFs in February of this year, Rize ETF enjoyed strong investor interest. The highly sought-after Rize Cybersecurity ETF recently passed the important 30 million US-Dollar mark. Rize ETF is currently working on two new products that will in turn address global and sustainable megatrends.

Prior to joining Rize, Engström was responsible for relations with fund selectors in the Nordic region at London-based financial services provider Investment Europe (Incisive Media), where he also managed the German market and Israel. "The Rize ETF team's corporate philosophy of making sustainable megatrends accessible to investors convinced me immediately," says Engström, who studied politics and German in Stockholm and Berlin. In addition to his native language and German, he speaks fluent English.
